

About the Participants

Brian C. Roseboro

Undersecretary for Domestic Finance, U.S. Department of the Treasury

Brian Carlton Roseboro was sworn in as Under Secretary of the Treasury for Domestic Finance on April 16, 2004. He previously served as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury for Financial Markets since July 30, 2001. In his role, Mr. Roseboro advises and assists the Secretary of the Treasury on all aspects of domestic finance. Specifically, the office is responsible for formulating policy and legislation in the areas of public debt management, capital markets, financial institutions, government financial management services, federal lending, fiscal affairs, government sponsored enterprises, and community development.

Prior to his government service, Mr. Roseboro was most recently Deputy Director of Market Risk Management for the American International Group from 1996 until 2001. From 1993 to 1996 he was Director & Risk Management Adviser on foreign exchange trading for Swiss Bank Corp. in New York. He was Vice President of foreign-exchange options trading at the First National Bank of Chicago between 1988 and 1993. He began his financial markets career with the Federal Reserve Bank of New York where he worked between 1983 and 1988, rising to chief dealer on the foreign-exchange trading desk.

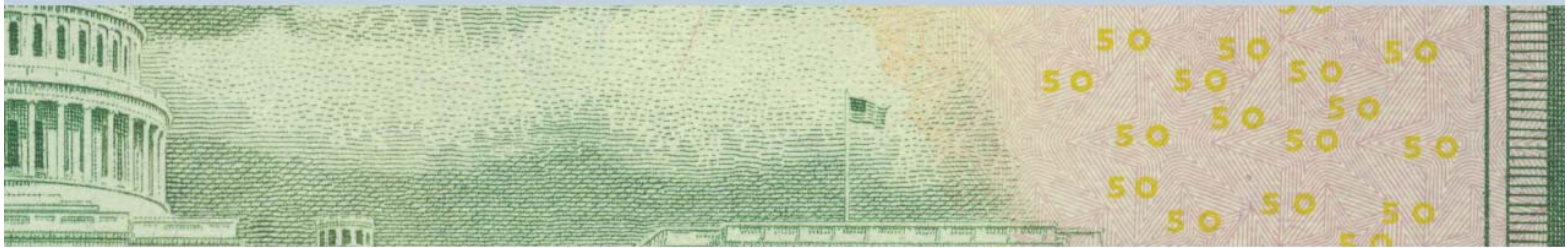

Louise L. Roseman

Director, Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System

Louise Roseman is the Director of the Division of Reserve Bank Operations and Payment Systems at the Federal Reserve Board. In this position, she is responsible for the oversight of the Federal Reserve Banks' provision of financial services to depository institutions, fiscal agency services to the Treasury and other government agencies, and significant support functions, such as information technology and financial and cost accounting. The division is also responsible for the development of Federal Reserve regulations and policies governing the payments system and works with other central banks and international organizations to improve the payments system more broadly.

Prior to joining the Federal Reserve Board in 1985, Ms. Roseman was Director of Regulatory Affairs for Visa U.S.A. and a member of the Government Relations staff of the American Bankers Association.

Biography

The New Color of Money Safer. Smarter. More Secure.

www.moneyfactory.com/newmoney

Thomas Ferguson Director, Bureau of Engraving and Printing

Thomas Ferguson was appointed director of the Treasury Department's Bureau of Engraving and Printing on December 7, 1998. The Bureau produces all currency, government securities and more than half of the nation's postage stamps at two facilities in Washington, D.C. and Fort Worth, Texas.

Director Ferguson has held a variety of leadership positions since he began his career with the Bureau in 1974. He has served as deputy director, associate director and director of the Bureau's Securities Technology Institute, where he oversaw the counterfeit deterrence program. Director Ferguson also chaired the New Currency Design Task Force that recommended the security features incorporated into the Series 1996 currency.

Bruce Townsend Deputy Assistant Director, United States Secret Service

Bruce A. Townsend is currently Deputy Assistant Director in the United States Secret Service's Office of Investigations. A career member of the Senior Executive Service, he oversees Secret Service offices in the United States and abroad, develops Secret Service investigative policy and leads investigative initiatives. In his twenty-year career, Mr. Townsend also served as Deputy Assistant Director in the Office of Protective Research, where he managed the counter-terrorism technology components of the Secret Service. Additionally, Mr. Townsend held supervisory positions as Special Agent in Charge of the Secret Service's Financial Crimes Division, Special Agent in Charge of its Counterfeit Division and Assistant Special Agent in Charge of the Memphis Field Office. Mr. Townsend also completed assignments at the Vice Presidential Protective Division, and the Los Angeles Joint Terrorist Task Force.

Mr. Townsend holds a Masters Degree from Southern Illinois University, earned a Federal Chief Information Officer certificate at the CIO Institute at Carnegie Mellon University, and is a graduate of the Program for Senior Executives in National and International Security at the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University.

